Educational goals and characteristics	The Adelaide Knee, Foot & Ankle Fellowship provides specialist training in lower limb surgery to senior trainees who have been previously trained in orthopaedic surgery. The Fellow will undertake clinical, surgical training and academic research. The Fellowship will be conducted under the supervision of Dr Peter Stavrou. Depending on the level of experience on entry to the fellowship program, it is anticipated that the Adelaide Knee, Foot & Ankle Fellow (on completion of 12 months training) would be proficient in the acute surgical management of lower limb conditions, including knee and ankle arthroscopy, knee and ankle replacements, and treatment of chronic arthritis and sporting injuries of the knee, foot and ankle. The Adelaide Knee, Foot & Ankle Fellowship also includes a one-year fellowship as a Senior Registrar at the Department of Orthopaedics, Flinders Medical Centre. The fellow will undertake clinical and academic training, and academic research with

	Dr Peter Stavrou at 215 Hutt Street. The Fellow will be employed for a term of 12 months from August to July. The Fellowship will involve clinical work in both surgical and outpatient care of conditions in the knee, foot and ankle. There are three orthopaedic surgeons who are accredited with the Australian Orthopaedic Association, who will be actively involved in mentoring and supervising the fellow. All of the surgeons have a focus on lower limb surgery, and two of these surgeons have predominantly foot and ankle based private practice. The focus of this Fellowship will be mainly foot and ankle and the chief supervisor has an interest in total ankle replacement. The fellowship is based in private practice, but there will be around 20 percent involvement in public hospital work at the Flinders Medical Centre and Noarlunga Health Services, which will include elective and trauma patients, as well as teaching and research.
